Some of the biggest questions you might be asking right now:

Why am I seeing an Oncologist/Hematologist?

Does this mean I have cancer?

Not always: Oncologist are doctors specializing in the care of cancer. Hematologists are doctors who specialize in the diagnosis, evaluation and treatment of blood diseases.

People see hematologists-medical oncologists for a variety of reasons. The most common reasons to see a hematologist specializing in benign (non-cancerous) hematology are blood disorders.
